

Guest talks on law and society

Two guest talks were organized by the ASocSc Legal Studies programme in Semester B 2018 where practicing lawyers came to share their insights on law and society in Hong Kong SAR and China respectively.

In early March 2018, David Tang, a barrister-at-law and well known political commentator, came to share his analysis on the state of rule of law in Hong Kong. There was a vibrant discussion between our students and David, who was also the external professional advisor of the Legal Studies programme.

Then in late April 2018, Albert Tsui, a practicing solicitor in Hong Kong and lawyer in mainland China, delivered a lecture on the legal system in China. The talk was attended not only by students from Legal Studies programme, but also Public Administration and Management programme. The talk proved to be a lively and insightful as Albert ended with a discussion on the myths and reality about the legal system in China.
